

I can't believe that the government is wasting time on an issue like this. Xm radio is awesome, they offer so many awesome channels. Variety that is not available by tuning into your local am or fm channel. Beside the fact that local stations play only what is hot or what they are told to play. Commercials fill up 75% of the airwaves. With xm there are no commercials, no crap you don't need to hear, and wait a second I pay for it. I should hear what I want. If I want local weather, I should have it. I shouldn't have to tune some crappy am station that doesn't come in have the time anyway. NAB just needs to take a look at their own stations and either fix them or just leave satellite radio alone, I will never listen to regular radio ever again. I am sure I am not alone here. The money hungry execs at every radio station across america and all the members of Nab who are trying to hurt xm and its customers should go back to counting their money and let us be free. We do live in america.
